MRS. MILLS WINS.

Is Given a Verdict for Twelve Hundred Dollars.

Jeweler Swearingen Must Pay for Her Assault.

CASE HARD FOUGHT.

Jury Found Every Point in Favor of Woman.

Mrs. Mills Pleased With Result of Trial.

Clara B. Mills was today awarded a judgment against Frak W. Swearingen and wife for $1,205 damages for personal injuries and malicious prosecution. On the first count, asking $5,cution. On the first count, asking $0.00 damages for injuries sustained when the plaintiff was beaten, kicked and bitten by Swearingen in his jewelry store, the woman received $575. On the second count also for $5,000, the jury gave Mrs. Mills judgment for $630 for malicious prosecution when Swearingen caused the woman's arrest to relieve court on a charge of stealing in police court on a charge of stealing a ring.

The case went to the jury shortly after i o'clock Thursday afternoon. Nine ballots were taken before the jury finally reached a verdict at 11 o'clock this morning. On the first ballot, three jurys contended for $7.500 damages. Three others were for $250. None voted for the defendants. It was a tedious, hard fought contest in the jury room in which the twelve men a tedious, hard fought contest in the jury room in which the twelve men finally agreed on a verdict.

At 11:10 the jury reported to Judge Dana. Their verdict as affecting the two defendants was not approved by the court and the jury returned to repair their work. They had agreed on the amount which Mrs. Mills should receive but Judge Dana instructed receive, but Judge Dana instructed them that on the first count, the judg-ment should be against Swearingen and his wife, but on the second count, Swearingen alone could be held re-sponsible. Fifteen minutes later the jury returned with its revised verdict. Attorney Ferry was the only lawyer in the case who was present when the verdict was read. Mrs. Anna E. Morey, mother of the plaintiff, was also in the court room. But Mrs. Mills had left the building an hour earlier. Mrs. Morey was elated.

Doran Arraigns Swearingen. In his closing argument to the jury Thursday afternoon, T. F. Doran of plaintiff's counsel, administered to Swearingen one of the most severe and burning arraignments that has been heard in a Shawnee county court in burning arraignments that has been heard in a Shawnee county court in months. He characterized Swearingen as a modern Shylock. Dramatically he portrayed to the jury how a miserive and oppressive merchant had extracted his pound of fiesh—even to the last drop of blood—at the expense of an innocent and defenseless little an innocent and defenseless little woman. So stinging was Doran's arraignment that Swearingen could not withstand the attack. Twice he left the court room. News of Doran's impassioned speech was passed through the corridors of the building and the court room soon filled with persons anxious to hear the impressive closing arrangement in the sangatoral sufficients.

anxious to hear the impressive closing argument in the sensational suit.

Instructions of the court had been very fair to the defense. In fact the lawyers for the plaintiff complained of a few of the legal constructions of the court. Both Ferry and Doran side-tracked their attentions to the instructions and devoted almost their entire hour to a relentless criticism of Swearingen's questionable tactics. He was abused for stopping the payment of the check. He was scored without mercy for his mistreatment of Mrs. Mills when she visited the store to inquire why the garage bill was not paid. Then the attorneys questioned Swearingen's testimony on the witness Swearingen's testimony on the witness stand and declared that he had not made a fair and impartial statement of his case to the city attorney when he asked for a warrant for Mrs. Mills arrest on a charge of stealing a ring.

Relied on Court's Instructions.

Otis Hungate for the defense, found the court's instructions his fairest harbor. He spent much of his time interpreting the court's charge to the jury and argued that the jury could not follow the instructions and find for the plaintiff. He made a or lose."

It's all so strange and puzzling, you know. But I was sure I should win. It isn't the judgment that concerns me so much. It's the fact that I won. And then, too, I have the comfort of knowing that I told the truth—and that is a good deal—whether you win or lose." find for the plaintiff. He made a good speech, but could not overcome the impression in the minds of the jury from the evidence of witnesses who told of Swearingen's attack and treatment of Mrs. Mills.

A number of special questions to the jury were submitted by the defense. But the jury found an answer for all of them. It divided the verdict, said Mrs. Swearingen. "You will have to talk to my husband."

dict, awarded exemplary damages, judgment for humiliation, personal injury, pain and suffering, injury to personal feelings and mental angulsh.

"After the plaintiff went to the store of the defendant's on August 26, 1916. did she take into her possession a ring ox and take it from the store with box and take it from the store with her?" was asked by Otis Hungate in his special question to the jury. "Yes," answered the jury. "Was the ring box she took from the store one which she had before delivered to Miss Sipes as agent of the defendant. F. W. Swearingen?" "Yes."

"What facts if any, do you find the defendant, F. W. Swearingen falled to inform Mr. Ralston, city attorney, prior to the signing of the complaint, which concerned the taking of the ruby ring and ring box?"

"He failed to inform the city attorney that plaintiff did not take ring from the store and he further failed to inform the city attorney that the ring box that plaintiff took from the store was the ring box that the ring sold to L. V. Mills was returned to the defendant to."

"After plaintiff went to the store of the defendant's on August 26, 1910, did she take into her lossession a ruby

SETTLE OLD QUARREL.

Western Union and State Settle Their Differences.

At last the battle of six years be tween the state of Kansas and the Western Union Telegraph company over the latter's franchise to do business in the state has been settled amicably. The charter board and the company officials have agreed upon the sum of $1.189.88 as the proper sum under the law for the Western Union to pay for its charter to do business in the state of Kansas.

When Attorney General Coleman

When Attorney General Coleman first started the ouster suit against the Western Union six years ago on the grounds that it refused to pay its charter fees, the supreme court of Kansas held that the company must pay fees on its capital stock, but the supreme charter fees on its capital invested in Kansas only.

The Western Union is capitalized at 120 millions of dollars. The charter board took the state tax commission assessment against the company in the sum of $1,206,762 as the basis for its Kansas capital and levied the sum of $1,180.58 as charter fees. The company agrees to this fee. So after doing business in the state for a great many years without paying any charmany years without paying any char-ter fees whaever, it will at once re-imburse the treasury in the above

St. Paul, May 19.-In the United St. Paul, May is.—In the United States circuit court of appeals today Judge W. C. Hook handed down an opinion affirming the order of the cir-cuit court of the District of Columbia in the case of the city and county of held that the company must pay fees on its capital stock, but the supreme court of the United States reversed the decision of the state court, holding that the Bush law was unconstitutional and that the company should pay charter fees on its capital invested in city and county of Denver and certain officers, including the public utilities commission, from issuing bonds and constructing a system of waterworks. The circuit court granted a temporary njunction on the complainant's bil and a cross bill from the Denver company. The case was brought to the circuit court of appeals on those orders.
